WATCHING AND WAITING Price Movement-Dull Trading.

On Part of Speculators—Irregular Price Movement—Dull Trading.

New York, Aug. 4.—The speculative attitude toward the stock market remains one of watching and waiting as was shown in the halting and irregular movement of prices today and the extreme duliness of the trading. In the larger view the doubts are whether the long decline in prices has met the deterioration in business as it has occurred and as it is foreseen. On the answer to that question would depend whether the stock market would withstand an additional falling off in business activity by maintaining prices.

In the more immediate view the questions to be solved have to do with conditions peculiar to the stock market itself. The belief that bankers had been called upon again to relieve some over-extended accounts of large capitalists and that some of the liquidation yesterday and early today was in that connection had a disturbing effect on sentiment. The rellef thus afforded removes the threatening influence so far but does not remove the apprehension that further work of the same kind is to be done. The avoidance of forced liquidation at a sacrifice in such cases leaves the possibility also of recurrent liquidation of accounts thus protected as favorable opportunity offers in the market.

The bear party, on the other hand, upon attempting to depress prices by offers and sales at concessions on short account, encountered evidence of a buying power that made them cautious. The supply of stocks also showed a tendency to decrease when bids were made to secure them to cover shorts. The joint effect was the narrow, hesitating drift of prices.

The course of the crops holds the largest share of speculative attention. The reported denial by the president of the United States Steel corporation that prices of steel products were being cut did not set at rest entirely the belief that the market in that industry was tending lower. The special weakness in the copper industrials revived doubts over the reality of the improvement in that trade.

HEADED IN RACE Boston Has a Chance at Pennant but Tigers Seem Stuck in Fourth Place.

With a lead of half a dozen games

With a lead of half a dozen games over the next nearest feam, the Athletics seem to have exceedingly good prospects for winning another American league pennant. In fact, nothing but the toughest sort of luck or a laydown can, so it seems, keep the feam down. Manager Mack has everything that he needs to pull off the trick. He has the best balanced as well as the stronger test in the league this year List of the Big Games Between the Football will soon be here: Following is a list of dates of the big games: down cam so it seems, keep the team down. Manager Mack has everything that he needs to pull off the trick. He has the best balanced as well as the strongest team in the league this year and has worked his way to the top in the face of some discouraging handicaps in the way of injuries to players. Now, with the haifway mark behind him and the team going right, it tooks like a cinch. But, of course, there will be no runnway race about it. That has not been the American league siyle in the past, and there is no reason to believe that it will prove so this year. The Athletics will come back if they succeed in getting a much greater lead than they now hold, and some rival, probably the New York Highlanders, will come up for a brush through the homestretch. The showing of the New York team this year is a source of great rejoicing in American league circles, for this is the first time that the Highlanders have made good, notwithstanding the fact that repeated efforts have been made to make them a winner. The Detroit team is not as good as it was last year, while the Athletics are better than ever. The Bostons are good, but not quite the equal of Connie Mack's bunch and there is nothing in the second division that compares with the leaders. If the Athletics do win the pennant the team that beats them for the world's title will have to do some stepping. The Chicago Cubs still hold the lead in the National league, but it will not be surprising to see a change in the order before long. The New York Gants are making a strong bid and the Pittsburg world's champions hips are ach won three championships in succession, Should the Pirates live up to precedent and chipture the flag for the second time the struggle for world's baseball honors next October may be between two Pennsylvania teams. This is a dream that has frequently been suggested, but which has never come true. There would be a lot of money in such a series, but nothing like the amount that would result from a series between Philadelphia and New York or he Gotham ni Sept. 28-Wesleyan at New Haven.
